(SAs) [redacted] and [redacted]

On February 3, 1989, a four-block area immediately surrounding the RIVER OAKS COUNTRY CLUB, 1600 River Oaks Blvd., Houston, Texas 77019 was driven looking for a two-story house with an east coast "Cape Cod" architectural style, set deep from the street, and situated on a "very wide boulevard."

It should be noted that River Oaks Boulevard, which dead ends at the RIVER OAKS COUNTRY CLUB, is the only street in the immediate vicinity which could be described as "very wide." The homes on this street could best be described as mansions, with most, if not all of them of an "east coast" architectural style. The house most closely fitting the "Cape Cod" description is located at [redacted]. The maid answering the door at this residence advised that the owners are native Houstonians, and that they are currently in Colorado. She was unaware of any Soviet emigres living in the immediate vicinity.

A home was located at [redacted] two blocks from the country club, which also could be considered to be of a "Cape Cod" architectural style. The maid answering the door at this home did not speak english. A business card was left asking the owner to contact the Houston office of the FBI.

He stated that no one had any idea who she was.

On February 3, 1989, a review of the 1987-8 HARRIS COUNTY BUSINESS GUIDE was conducted for schools of dance operated by individuals with Russian surnames. From: [redacted]

Subject: Tower Nomination

On February 7, 1989, [redacted] of San Francisco, California was contacted regarding information about John Tower. [redacted] can be reached at [redacted]. He can also be reached at [redacted]. [redacted] provided the following information.

[redacted] is formerly from Dallas, Texas. He left there 18 months ago. [redacted] stated that he has returned to Dallas several times since his departure. [redacted] advised that he often frequents the "Mansion Bar" located in Dallas. [redacted] has observed John Tower there on numerous occasions. He has even sat beside Tower at dinner there. [redacted] stated that within the past 18 months he has observed Tower "slur his words," "drink a lot" and "constantly have a drink in his hand." [redacted] indicated that just by looking at Tower, "it is easy to see that he drinks a lot." For instance, Tower's "face is puffy."

[redacted] stated that recently he attended a party in San Francisco. Almost all of the guests, prominent republicans, were from Dallas, Texas and travel in the same social circle as John Tower. [redacted] pointed out that Tower's nomination was a topic of discussion at the party and everyone had a "hard time believing that Tower was being considered for Secretary of Defense." [redacted] preferred not to give names of individuals attending the party but stated that he would contact the individuals and have them call me. [redacted] stated that at least two of the individuals know Tower personally.

[redacted] suggested contacting [redacted] or [redacted] at the Mansion Bar in Dallas, Texas. [redacted] indicated that he thought they would be reluctant to talk. According to [redacted] has worked there for years and would want to protect his job.

[redacted] advised that the U.S. LEAGUE had a membership in the now defunct QUORUM CLUB, which operated out of the CARROLL ARMS HOTEL. The QUORUM CLUB leased a dining room area in the hotel and members ate lunch there during the week. Membership consisted of many lobbyists and Congressmen who gathered to discuss politics over lunch. It was a private club supported by membership fees and dues, however, all meals were prepared by the hotel and charged to the individual members. The U.S. LEAGUE had an account with the hotel and all meals purchased at the QUORUM CLUB were billed to the U.S. LEAGUE on a monthly basis. As much as $2,000.00 a month was paid to the CARROLL ARMS HOTEL for meals and drinks consumed at the QUORUM CLUB. At no time did the U.S. LEAGUE rent a room at the hotel for TOWER's use or any other purpose. At no time during the U.S. LEAGUE's membership in the QUORUM CLUB did JOHN TOWER or any other Congressman have account signing privileges with the U.S. LEAGUE.

The QUORUM CLUB disbanded shortly after the [redacted] scandal because [redacted] was a member of the club and it received a great deal of bad publicity from his affiliation. The club members later formed the "116 CLUB" at another location.

[redacted] does not recall TOWER ever being in a position to assist in favorable legislation for the Savings and Loan industry and he does not categorize TOWER as even an acquaintance.

[redacted] does not recall ever requesting that an employee of the U.S. LEAGUE telephone a female with instructions to meet someone at the CARROLL ARMS HOTEL. He does not recall GLENN TROOP ever having done this either, however, TROOP could have done this without [redacted] knowledge.

[redacted] advised he was the [redacted] [redacted] a lobbying group in Washington, D.C. [redacted] advised he was very familiar with Senator JOHN TOWER. [redacted] advised that concerning TOWER's "moral character", he would make the following comments: [redacted] explained that as a background to his comments, he wanted to make it clear that in his capacity as a lobbyist he goes to hundreds of social affairs and receptions with members of House and Senate, and has observed numerous members of the House and Senate in various popular Washington, D. C., restaurants on numerous occasions. [redacted] explained that on none of these occasions did he ever actually take notes or realize that he would have to recall, with some detail, what he observed on the part of Senator TOWER or any other elected official for that matter. [redacted] recalled two incidents, in particular, concerning Senator TOWER. [redacted] recalled both were receptions, both were held in the DIRKSEN SENATE HOUSE BUILDING in one of the large caucus rooms, and both were receptions involving some type of military organizations, such as the RESERVE OFFICERS ASSOCIATION. [redacted] recalled that the first reception took place in 1973, just after Senator JOHN TOWER had been elected Chairman for the Committee for Public Policy. [redacted] recalled that at that reception, Senator TOWER was extremely inebriated and was having trouble walking, however, did not fall down. [redacted] advised he observed TOWER at this reception and spoke with him, and TOWER kept repeating himself and was making bizarre statements and his behavior was that of a very inebriated person. [redacted] advised, on this occasion, another man was helping TOWER walk and eventually helped him leave the reception. [redacted] did not know the individual and described him as a white male, probably in his forties. [redacted] said that in his estimation, the man who was helping TOWER was probably a staff member of TOWER's, because of the deference that this individual was showing TOWER.

[redacted] advised that the other occasion that sticks out in his mind was another reception that occurred in 1983, again in the SENATE OFFICE BUILDING and TOWER, at this reception, was extremely inebriated and drunk and was again having trouble walking and talking and was acting in a very bizarre manner.

[redacted] advised that on this occasion a white female, approximately thirty years old, was helping TOWER walk around the reception. [redacted] cannot recall if he saw TOWER leave the reception with the woman. [redacted] stated that he did not know the woman's name, nor had he ever seen her again. It was [redacted] estimation that the woman was not a staff member of TOWER's since she seemed somewhat annoyed with TOWER's behavior and annoyed that she had to help him walk around.

[redacted] emphasized that he has been at perhaps eight to ten other receptions in the presence of TOWER, where TOWER was acting in what he would consider, normal behavior and certainly not drunk or inebriated by any means. [redacted] also advised that, on these additional occasions, he was in the presence of young, white female companions, and he was behaving like a perfect gentleman with these women. [redacted] stated he did not know the names of any of the women he observed with TOWER.

[redacted] advised that during the 1970's and the 1980's, he has been to the MONACLE RESTAURANT (MR) on Capitol Hill, dozens and dozens of times. [redacted] advised that part of his job is to meet with various members of Congress and other individuals, and the MR is a very good meeting place. [redacted] advised, on approximately fifteen occasions, during the 1970's and the 1980's, he has observed JOHN TOWER at the [redacted] advised that the last occasion he saw JOHN TOWER at the MR was in early 1987.

[redacted] advised that, on each one of these occasions, TOWER appeared to be drunk and inebriated.

[redacted] also recalled that on each of the fifteen occasions he observed TOWER in the MR, TOWER was accompanied by a female companion. Each of these women were in their early twenties and very attractive and always much taller than TOWER. [redacted] did recall, on one occasion, TOWER was accompanied by an attractive female who was in her forties.

[redacted] recalled that on two specific occasions, one in the early 1970's and one in the early 1980's, that TOWER's behavior in the restaurant with the females, on these two occasions, was outrageous. [redacted] advised that on both of these occasions, TOWER was inebriated and making extremely romantic advances towards his female companions such as stroking, petting, and patting them during dinner and talking loudly and making suggestive, romantic remarks. [redacted] could not recall any specific quotes, however, they were obviously the type of quotes that a dating couple would make in a romantic situation.

[redacted] recalled that on all fifteen of these occasions, he made his conclusion that TOWER was drunk and inebriated because he observed TOWER order drink, after drink, after drink, and [redacted] advised that even though he [redacted] might have arrived after TOWER and [redacted] had dinner, he always preceded TOWER when leaving this restaurant.

[redacted] stated he was aware that during certain periods of the 1970's and 1980's, TOWER was divorced and therefore, a single man, however, [redacted] was sure that some of these instances had to encompass periods of time when TOWER was married, and since [redacted] knew both of TOWER's wives on sight; he knew these females were not TOWER's wife.

[redacted] advised he did not know the identities of any of these women, and did not know how they could be identified, except perhaps if the waiters or staff of the MR could recall these incidents and know any of the women. [redacted] advised he did not know of any gentlemen who could be categorized as "drinking buddies" of TOWER.

[redacted] advised that as far as corroboration for his observations, he could not recall any specific individuals who were with him or TOWER on any of these occasions. [redacted] advised that he attended numerous receptions and dined at MR and other restaurants many, many times. Therefore he was unable to provide the name of any specific individuals who observed the behavior that he observed.

However, [redacted] stated he could provide the names of three individuals who, while he does not recall specifically their presence at any particular event, they were in positions that may have required their presence at various functions where he [redacted] TOWER would have attended.

Last known telephone number [redacted]

[redacted] advised [redacted] was another individual who served on many House and Senate staffs and would have probably been in various functions where TOWER was present.

[redacted] requested that his name not be divulged as having supplied the above-mentioned names.

[redacted] when asked, stated TOWER drank cocktails, not beer, when [redacted] observed him. [redacted] thinks TOWER drank vodka from hearing him order drinks.

HOUSTON CASE AGENT AND PROVIDED THE FOLLOWING INFORMATION..

IN THE EARLY 1970'S PRESIDENT NIXON NAMED HILLARY SANDOVAL (MALE) TO HEAD THE SMALL BUSINESS ADMINISTRATION (SBA). SANDOVAL WAS A FRIEND OF SENATOR TOWER'S. SOON AFTER SANDOVAL WAS APPOINTED, (LATE 1971 OR EARLY 1972) A CLOSE FRIEND OF TOWER'S, A [REDACTED] (MALE) OF EL PASO, TEXAS, APPLIED FOR AND WAS GRANTED A $350,000 LOAN BY THE SBA, WHICH WAS THE MAXIMUM AMOUNT ALLOWED AT THE TIME. TWO WEEKS LATER, [REDACTED] ALLEGEDLY MADE A $250,000. LOAN TO TOWER'S RE-ELECTION CAMPAIGN. SOON AFTER THAT, TOWER'S RE-ELECTION HEADQUARTERS, LOCATED AT 58TH AND LA VACA, AUSTIN, TEXAS "MYSTERIOUSLY" BURNED DOWN.

GROVER RECALLED THAT THE STORY WAS WIDELY REPORTED IN THE MEDIA AT THE TIME. GROVER ADVISED THAT HE HAS PERSONALLY SEARCHED NEWSPAPER MORGUES IN EL PASO, TEXAS, AND FOR SOME REASON, THE STORIES ARE NOT ON RECORD.

GROVER STATED THAT RECORD OF [REDACTED] $250,000. LOAN SHOULD BE ON RECORD WITH THE CHIEF CLERK OF THE U.S. SENATE, AND WITH THE SECRETARY OF STATE'S OFFICE IN AUSTIN, TEXAS. United States Senate, Committee on Armed Services, 232A Russell Senate Office Building, Washington, D.C., telephone number [redacted] was advised of the identity of the interviewing agent and that he was being interviewed regarding a background clearance investigation concerning JOHN GOODWIN TOWER and his knowledge of any past circumstances that might have a bearing on TOWER's suitability for Federal employment or access to classified information. [redacted] voluntarily provided the following information:

[redacted] advised he began to work for the Committee in March, 1983. [redacted] advised that he has never seen TOWER abuse alcohol. [redacted] has seen TOWER socially drink on occasion, usually after a long day of debate on the Senate floor. At that time, TOWER along with Staff members who were with him during the day would retire to TOWER's upstairs Capitol Hill office where alcoholic beverages were served. During these office functions, [redacted] stated TOWER could be seen drinking one martini but he [redacted] never saw TOWER request more than one martini. [redacted] stated that he has gone to lunch with TOWER and other Staff members of the Committee either two or three times. [redacted] stated these lunches would occur at either The Monacle, a bar on Capitol Hill or at a restaurant called The Broker, in Southeast Washington. At these luncheon engagements, [redacted] saw TOWER moderately drink, usually white wine.

[redacted] advised that he attended a Committee Staff Retreat which occurred in 1984 at Fort A. P. Hill, Virginia. [redacted] stated this was one and one-half to a two-day retreat attended by various staff members in an informal setting. [redacted] stated that during the day various meetings and briefings occurred. At night, informal dinners and drinking occurred. [redacted] stated the lodge in which the Retreat was held at the Fort had one large main room with smaller housing units off to either side. [redacted] advised TOWER had a large suite next to the main meeting room. This suite consisted of three rooms including a bedroom area and adjoining bath. During the night, [redacted] advised most staff members would sit around the main room where music would be playing. On one night, various members were performing skits for fellow members. Also, a poker game was occurring. During the nighttime, [redacted] reiterated that a large percentage of the Staff members drank alcoholic beverages but he never saw anyone inebriated or intoxicated.

[redacted] advised that there were approximately six to eight individuals sitting around a large table where poker was being played. These individuals included TOWER, [redacted] and [redacted] believed [redacted] was sitting next to TOWER and possibly between TOWER and [redacted]. This table was positioned inside of the main lodge area and in plain view of all staff members. [redacted] recalled [redacted] getting up from the table and walking across the room towards TOWER's living quarters by herself. "A few minutes later" which [redacted] interpreted to be approximately five minutes, TOWER got up from the table and proceeded towards his living quarters. [redacted] stated that [redacted] and TOWER were together in his living quarters from 10 to 35 minutes in length. [redacted] added that his knowledge of this time period tended to be towards the shorter period but he could not fully remember. [redacted] recalls [redacted] coming out of TOWER's living quarters with another female staff member. He could not remember who the staff member was and he did not originally see the other woman go into the room.

[redacted] recalled a conversation he had with [redacted] within the first week after they returned from the Retreat. This conversation dealt with office gossip that had developed from [redacted] entering of TOWER's private suite. [redacted] stated he asked [redacted] what happened during that event and [redacted] answered "absolutely nothing; I got sick; he gave me a towel". [redacted] did not further question [redacted] regarding the incident and could not comment further.

[redacted] had no personal knowledge of any type of sexual indiscretions committed by TOWER. He knew of no one that TOWER approached or made sexual advances toward and he could not comment further regarding these alleged indiscretions.

[redacted] stated he believed TOWER's intellect and capabilities were extraordinary. He added that in the 18 months in which he worked for TOWER, he saw him (TOWER) under a lot of pressure and never saw him (TOWER) rely on alcohol or other outside aids. He added TOWER was known for his hard work and he has never seen anything inappropriate in regards to his personal or professional behavior. In conclusion, [redacted] stated that TOWER "had a lot of stamina".

His contact with the appointee was principally during the briefing sessions after negotiation sessions.

He is unaware of any foreign contacts of the appointee which would be considered unusual in any kind of a national security sense, nor of any radical or adverse political associations on his part. He mentioned that he has encountered heresay from the media but has no firsthand knowledge of his own, nor has he received information from anyone having firsthand knowledge, that would be considered derogatory regarding the appointee. He knows of no criminal activity in the appointee's past and likewise has no personal knowledge of any aspect of the appointee's past that would render him susceptible to any kind of a coercive effort.

When asked as to whether he was in a position to comment upon the appointee's interaction with his own family, he related that he met the appointee's second wife, LILLA, at the social function mentioned above, speaking with her on the order of twenty to thirty minutes, during a "very congenial evening," before he was called away to handle some confidential documents.

He has no knowledge of any sexual indiscretions on the appointee's part, nor of any mental incapacities, to include depression.

He has limited knowledge of the appointee's past, in particular he knows of no potential conflicts of interest regarding defense contractors, nor of any illegal campaign contributions to, or spending by, the appointee. He has no knowledge of any banking activities on the appointee's part.

for friends. TOWER stated he has never sought federal funds for any friends. He did note, however, that he has often sought federal funds for universities within the State of Texas, the state he represented as Senator. He stated that these efforts to obtain federal funds would have been made both within the legislative process and in dealings with the Executive Branch. He stated that such efforts to obtain funding for schools within one's state is a perfectly normal and appropriate function of a Senator. He stated that using influence in this way is a legitimate function and is one which continues to be used by Senators today.

TOWER was asked whether he had ever rented, owned, or used a house in the RIVER OAKS COUNTRY CLUB section of Houston, Texas. TOWER stated that he has never done so, stating that he did not believe he could afford a home in that section. When asked if he had ever kept a mistress, TOWER answered that he had never kept any mistress, nor had he ever been kept by one. He further speculated that the interviewing Agent's next question would involve a Soviet ballerina. When asked how an allegation that TOWER was keeping a Soviet ballerina as a mistress might have developed, TOWER stated that he does know one individual who might be considered a Soviet ballerina. He stated that this is a long-time friend of his, a female who is approximately years old. Although he believes she was born in China, she is definitely of Russian heritage. This individual, has a background in dance, in music, and in art. She is widely known in the social circles and TOWER believes that she is a close friend of and of himself. He has never had a sexual relationship with

TOWER was then advised that an allegation had been made that, approximately 1987, TOWER attended a party within the RIVER OAKS COUNTRY CLUB neighborhood, a party at which he was observed to have danced on furniture and to have removed his clothes. TOWER advised that the only social function he can recall having attended during 1987 in that neighborhood was a dinner given at the RIVER OAKS COUNTRY CLUB, itself, by SOUTHWESTERN UNIVERSITY. The dinner was given in honor of the retiring Chairman of the Board of Directors of SOUTHWESTERN UNIVERSITY. TOWER recalled that he (TOWER) spoke at this dinner. At this point in the interview, TOWER telephonically contacted [redacted] Georgetown, Texas. After a telephonic conference with [redacted] TOWER advised that this particular dinner honoring [redacted] was given on Tuesday, September 15, 1987. TOWER advised that [redacted] reminded TOWER that [redacted] had spent the entire evening with TOWER at the social gathering. TOWER advised that [redacted] would be more than happy to speak to Agents concerning this matter. TOWER advised that he does not recall any social gatherings held at private residences within the RIVER OAKS COUNTRY CLUB neighborhood within the time in question. TOWER stated that he has attended parties in that neighborhood, but "not in the last couple of years." TOWER stated that he has never removed his clothing in public and is quite modest about this. In fact, TOWER stated that he is very rarely seen in a short sleeved shirt. He advised that he has never danced on any type of furniture.

TOWER was asked whether he had ever utilized the services of prostitutes in Dallas, Texas. He advised that he had never done so. TOWER was asked whether he was familiar with [redacted] [redacted] TOWER stated that he is not familiar with any of these people. To the best of his knowledge, he does not know them, nor has he ever met them.

TOWER was asked to advise whether or not he has drunk alcohol to excess since 1983, at either the MONOCLE RESTAURANT or the JEFFERSON HOTEL. TOWER responded in the negative, stating that he has never drunk to excess at either location since 1983. He did caution, however, that the term excess is difficult to define. TOWER advised that he has never drunk alcohol to the point where he was not in complete control of his faculties, both mental and physical. He did state, however, that he has drunk alcohol at both locations since then, but in moderate quantities. He stated that he usually drinks white wine and occasionally will have a glass of port or sherry. Once every two months he might have a martini made with gin. Each of these would have been taken in moderate quantities, but never to excess. When asked whether or not he drinks vodka, TOWER stated that the only time he would drink vodka is at a social gathering where caviar is being served. He explained that when caviar is served, it is often served with a shot of vodka. TOWER stated that at such a time, he might have one or perhaps more than one shot of vodka with caviar. TOWER stated that his drinking has decreased greatly over the years, as he has become older. In addition, TOWER noted a recent operation which he has undergone. As a result of this operation, TOWER stated that, "I doubt that I'll ever drink spirits again." He noted that he did not have a drink of any alcohol for about three weeks after his operation and usually does not ever drink unless he is eating.

TOWER was asked whether he had ever used United States Government personnel to clean up his personal residence after flooding in the basement of his home in Geneva, Switzerland. TOWER stated that he has no recollection of any flooding of his home in Geneva and certainly never ordered or requested United States Government personnel to clean such a flood. He noted that the house he resided in did have a maid and a houseman around the house and these people would generally have been asked to clean any such mess. In addition, when his second wife was in Geneva, she generally handled all matters concerning the house and may have "ordered a thing of this sort." TOWER noted that she did place great demands on the staff, which placed great demands on his marriage to Mrs. TOWER.

TOWER was advised that insurance records reveal that he reported an accident during October, 1974. The report concerning this accident indicates, "Vehicle hit wall." TOWER was asked if he recalled the circumstances surrounding this accident, who was driving, and other details. TOWER advised that he has no recollection whatsoever of this accident. He speculated that he could have backed the car into a wall. He noted that his depth perception is not good, due to glaucoma in his eyes. He does recall scraping a column with the side of his car while attempting to back out of parking space at the garage at his residence, 4100 Cathedral Avenue, N. W., Washington, D. C.

TOWER was asked if he recalled [redacted] being involved in an accident with TOWER. TOWER responded that he does recall [redacted] who was used as [redacted] by TOWER at that time, having had an accident in TOWER's personally owned Chrysler New Yorker. TOWER advised that [redacted] was driving and TOWER was a passenger in the front seat. TOWER instructed [redacted] to make a sharp right-hand turn, which [redacted] did immediately. However, in the process of making this right-hand turn, [redacted] collided with a Volkswagen which was also proceeding to the right-hand side of the Chrysler. TOWER stated that this all occurred in the morning, and alcohol played absolutely no part in this particular accident. He does not recall the date when this accident could have taken place. TOWER was asked if he could recall any other accidents which might have taken place about 1974 or any other accidents which might have taken place in the vicinity of 4100 Cathedral Avenue, N. W., Washington, D. C. TOWER advised that he could not recall any other such accidents.

TOWER was advised that insurance records indicate that he had reported an accident during September, 1973, which report stated that, "Vehicle hit while parked." TOWER was asked if he recalled circumstances surrounding this accident. TOWER advised that he has no specific recollection of this accident. He does recall one instance in which his personally owned vehicle was hit while it was parked, but TOWER thought it was much later in time than 1973. In addition, he has no recollection of other details concerning this accident.

TOWER was advised that an allegation has been made that he was observed chasing [redacted] around a desk, pinching at her tight skirt. He was asked whether or not such an incident ever took place and for the surrounding circumstances. TOWER responded, "Hell no." He further stated, "That's ridiculous." TOWER advised that [redacted] has been a member of his staff for many years. He stated that she has already been interviewed by the FBI and could be interviewed again, if needed. He stated that he treats [redacted] like a daughter and advised that he has a close relationship with her, but one that is perfectly proper and appropriate. He advised that he has always treated her "like a lady," and has never behaved in a manner which might have been interpreted as chasing her around the desk or pinching at her skirt.

[redacted] also advised that during the 1970's and 1980's, he has been to the Monocle Restaurant (MR) on Capitol Hill numerous times. On approximately 15 occasions during this time period, the most recent being in 1987, he has seen Senator Tower at the MR. On all of these occasions, Senator Tower appeared to be drunk and inebriated. He also stated that on each of these occasions, Senator Tower was with a female companion.

[redacted] recalled two specific occasions, one in the early 1970's and the other in the early 1980's (specific dates unrecalled), in which Senator Tower's behavior at the MR with his female companions was outrageous. [redacted] related that on both occasions, Senator Tower was inebriated and was making extremely romantic advances towards his companion, such as stroking, petting, and patting during dinner, as well as talking loudly and making suggestive, romantic remarks. [redacted] could not remember specific language used, but stated that Senator Tower and his companion used language that a couple who was dating would use in a romantic situation. [redacted] concluded that Senator Tower was drunk because he observed him order one drink after another and that, even though he might have arrived after Senator Tower, he always preceded Senator Tower in leaving the restaurant.

[redacted] did not know the identities of any of Senator Tower's female companions, or anyone who could be categorized as his "drinking buddies." He also could not recall any individual with whom he or Senator Tower was with on any of these occasions, but stated that the staff of the MR could possibly provide additional information.

[redacted] the MR, Washington, D.C., advised that Senator Tower has been a patron since the early 1960's. [redacted] has never seen Senator Tower intoxicated, nor has he ever seen any indication that he abuses alcohol. He also has never seen any signs of womanizing by Senator Tower. On those occasions where he is in the company of women other than his wife, [redacted] advised it appeared to be in a professional context. He added that Senator Tower has never been loud or abusive in the restaurant, and has always behaved like a gentleman.

[redacted] the MR because in his/her opinion, Senator Tower had had too much to drink. During this period of time, Senator Tower drank martinis. He/she [redacted] [redacted] based on what he/she knew Senator Tower had drunk, and not on his physical condition. Senator Tower was not abusive or drunken, nor did he appear to not be in control of his faculties. On no occasion did he/she ever see Senator Tower in a drunken condition. He/she indicated that during the last fifteen years, Senator Tower has limited his social drinking to wine and, during the last several years, he/she is aware that Senator Tower has reduced his intake of wine.

This individual also stated that he/she does not know Senator Tower to be a philanderer or "skirt chaser", and to the best of his/her knowledge, he/she knows of no instance when Senator Tower dined in the MR with other than his wife, staffers or other Senators.

[redacted] [redacted] advised that he has been employed as [redacted] at the MR for [redacted]. During this time, he has seen Senator Tower on approximately six occasions for lunch, and two or three times in the evening. Senator Tower consumes two to four drinks per visit. Senator Tower has come in "pretty loaded" on those occasions when he arrives in the evening, after 11:00 p.m., and it was apparent to him that Senator Tower had been drinking elsewhere. [redacted] elaborated by describing Senator Tower as "visibly affected", "a little clumsy", "more brusque than usual", and a "trifle awkward."

[redacted] advised that Senator Tower has been joined by female companions at the MR, and he has observed them engage in intimate conversation; however, he has never observed them display any sort of physical intimacy. The last episode of this nature occurred two to four months ago. [redacted] stated that Senator Tower was always able to function on his own after his visits to the MR, and that his consumption of alcohol was no greater than most of the members of Congress whom [redacted] has observed.

[redacted] also related that he heard a rumor approximately ten years ago which involved cocaine use by two Congressmen and two Senators. He identified one of the Congressman as [redacted] and he had heard that Senator Tower was one of the Senators involved. [redacted] knew nothing further regarding this alleged cocaine use, to include specific individuals involved, or the source of the rumor. (A review of the results of the 1987 background

They have never seen him intoxicated or acting in a loud or abusive manner.

2. Sexual harassment by Senator Tower of staff employees.

An individual who requested confidentiality, advised that he/she does not personally know Senator Tower. However, in approximately 1976 to 1977, Senator Tower was "at a focal point of a network of gossip" because of allegations of his excessive drinking and womanizing. He/she had heard that encounters with various female Capitol Hill employees always "ended in a 'gropedate'". He/she declined to be specific as to what he/she meant by this, but stated that Senator Tower "got sexual kicks during drinking and dining with women." According to him/her, afterwards, Senator Tower often did not remember what he had done.

He/she advised that he/she was told by two female Capitol Hill employees of a third woman who was particularly bothered emotionally by Senator Tower's efforts to sexually harass her. (All three women had described Senator Tower as "most troublesome" and "dangerous.") He/she was telephonically contacted by this third woman on two separate occasions, and he/she came to believe that the young woman was, in fact, "a basket-case." He/she would not discuss what the woman told her about what Senator Tower did to her. He/she related that there was a "sister-hood" (sic) of women who had stories about Senator Tower's behavior, and how they handled him (and others). He/she also advised that Senator Tower was said to have frequently taken young women to the "cheaters paradise", which he/she ^{AS WELL AS} identified as the Rotunda, and is no longer in business, and the MR. He/she could not recall the names of any of the women involved, or persons who could further verify or confirm his/her information.

An individual*, who requested confidentiality, advised that he/she became familiar with Senator Tower when he/she served on [redacted] of the United States delegation to the arms reduction talks in Geneva, Switzerland. He/she has personally observed Senator Tower drink alcohol but has never seen him drunk or get out of hand.

He/she related an incident that happened at the State Department office of Senator Tower in Geneva, Switzerland, in approximately May, 1986. Several people were in the office, and were talking and joking. A female staff member made a comment to Senator Tower, and he began chasing her playfully around the office for approximately one to one and one-half minutes. He was grabbing at the staffer's skirt, which was tight, so he was actually pinching her bottom. After they stopped, everyone laughed. Nothing further happened, but he/she felt this was extremely inappropriate behavior for an Ambassador. (It is noted that this female staff member was previously interviewed, and provided no unfavorable information concerning Senator Tower.)

He/she also stated that, on at least one occasion, Senator Tower utilized his staff for his personal use while on Government time. He/she advised that Senator Tower's basement was flooded, and he ordered his staff to help clean his house.

He/she opined that Senator Tower does not care about sexual harassment on the job. This individual so advised because [redacted]

He/she also opined that Senator Tower, as head of the Tower Commission, had "whitewashed" over the Iran/Contra affair in return for the political payoff of becoming Secretary of Defense. He/she provided no information in support of his/her opinions.

John Goodwin Tower

Additional interviews are being conducted into this allegation.

3. Senator Tower was involved in automobile accidents at a former residence and was subsequently asked to move.

A review of Senator Tower's Standard Form 86 disclosed that from September, 1970, to September, 1976, he resided at 4100 Cathedral Avenue (CONDOMINIUM), Northwest, Washington, D.C.

An individual,* who requested confidentiality, advised that for three years, he/she resided at the CONDOMINIUM, Northwest, Washington, D.C. He/she stated that, among the residents, Senator Tower had a reputation of having a drinking problem. During the three years that he/she lived in the CONDOMINIUM, he/she saw Senator Tower return home drunk on two or three occasions. Each of these instances occurred late at night. When Senator Tower was dropped off by another individual, he/she observed Senator Tower to stagger. In addition, he/she saw Senator Tower drunk at a party during that time. Other than the previously mentioned incidents, he/she never personally observed Senator Tower drink or be in a state of drunkenness.

He/she further recalled seeing an automobile at the bottom of a dell or ravine, which was immediately next to the driveway entrance to the CONDOMINIUM. He/she was told by the elderly woman who ran the desk at the CONDOMINIUM that the car belonged to Senator Tower, who had driven the car off the driveway and into the ravine. The woman related to him/her that this was the second time that Senator Tower had had this particular accident.

He/she advised that, as a result of these accidents and Senator Tower's reputed drinking, several meetings were held by the CONDOMINIUM owner's association. However, he/she only attended one meeting. He/she recalled discussion by several residents of the CONDOMINIUM who wished to have Senator Tower removed. He/she does not know what action, if any, was ever taken towards Senator Tower, and he/she is unable to recall the names of any other individuals who are knowledgeable regarding these incidents. He/she noted that it is entirely possible that, since that time, Senator Tower no longer has a problem with alcohol.

John Goodwin Tower

[redacted] (Protect Identity) advised she was the [redacted] She advised that, when Senator Tower came home at night, he had been drinking "nine times out of ten." She recalled two occasions from 1974 to 1975 in which Senator Tower stumbled after passing the night desk and that [redacted] John Linkens, the former doorman who is now deceased, had to help him to his feet.

b7D

[redacted] also recalled that, on two occasions, she heard a loud noise shortly before Senator Tower entered the CONDOMINIUM. She noted that he was having difficulty negotiating the sharp left curve into the complex, and his car was apparently hitting the curb, although she never witnessed this. Senator Tower never struck the CONDOMINIUM or the glass which comprised that side of the lobby. She believes that on one occasion, a tow truck retrieved his car, but she could not remember other details of the incident. [redacted] also recalled one occasion where Senator Tower's couch caught on fire, which she surmised was caused by a cigarette after a "happy hour."

[redacted] also mentioned that "there were a lot of women around when his wife wasn't around", but she was unable to determine whether or not these ladies were his staff members.

[redacted] recalled being approached by other residents regarding Senator Tower's activities, but she could not recall the names of specific tenants. One unrecalled tenant expressed relief when it was discovered that Mr. Linkens was parking Senator Tower's car, thus his own vehicle would be safe from being struck. [redacted] would not recommend Senator Tower "for anything."

[redacted] and [redacted] former [redacted] [redacted] at the CONDOMINIUM, respectively, were interviewed. They advised they had no knowledge of any alcohol abuse or any difficulties encountered by Senator Tower in negotiating the curving entranceway to the CONDOMINIUM. They were also unaware of Senator Tower's name being brought before the CONDOMINIUM association in a derogatory sense. They recommended him for a position of trust and confidence with the United States Government.

[redacted] CONDOMINIUM resident, related that he has lived there since [redacted] and has been a member of the [redacted] beginning [redacted] in [redacted] He characterized Senator Tower's reputation in the CONDOMINIUM as "excellent". He has never known Senator Tower to have any difficulty in negotiating the roads in and around the CONDOMINIUM, before or after consuming alcohol. He has never known Senator Tower to abuse alcohol, and has no knowledge of Senator Tower's name ever being brought before the [redacted] in any context. He recommended Senator Tower for a position of trust and confidence with the United States Government.

[redacted] stated she has resided at the CONDOMINIUM since [redacted]. She has served on the [redacted] and was instrumental in its founding. [redacted] She advised that there were never any allegations made concerning Senator Tower's use of alcohol, driving proficiency, or automobile accidents, made at any meeting of [redacted] [redacted] which she attended. She has never known Senator Tower to abuse alcohol, and she recommends him for a position of trust and confidence.

Information has been received from the Metropolitan Police Department, Washington, D.C., indicating that accident reports are only maintained for three months. Accident reports are then transferred to the District Building, Public Documents Section, and are filed by complaint number. Access requires either that complaint number or the exact date of the accident and the parties involved.

[redacted] Williams-Dwyer Insurance Company, Wichita Falls, Texas, advised he has been Senator Tower's insurance agent for twenty-two years. He stated he has no driving record concerning Senator Tower as he is a perfect customer, in that he pays his bills and has no accidents. [redacted] advised that Senator Tower's policy is underwritten by AETNA Life and Casualty Company (AETNA), in Dallas, Texas.

[redacted] Unit Manager, AETNA, Richardson, Texas, advised that the only accident in which Senator Tower was involved occurred on April 1, 1976, when Senator Tower pulled out in front of another vehicle. Senator Tower's record with AETNA disclosed his vehicle was involved in numerous other claims, but Senator Tower was not driving the vehicle. AETNA's policy is to destroy records after approximately five years, and it cannot further be determined where the location of the claims occurred. Those claims and accidents are as follows:

4. Senator Tower kept a Russian emigre ballerina in Houston, Texas.

An individual by the name of [redacted] contacted the SASC on February 1 and 2, 1989. He stated that he is [redacted] and, during the summer of 1987, he was on sabbatical in Houston, Texas. He met a Russian emigre ballerina at the River Oaks Country Club in Houston and she invited him to her home, which was two blocks from the country club. [redacted] described her home as being well removed from the street, on a wide boulevard and that it had a distinctive east coast or "Cape Cod" architectural style. There were four or five other guests there, including Senator Tower.

[redacted] advised that Senator Tower told him that this was his woman, that he had introduced her to society, and he had bought the house for her. Senator Tower, having found out that he [redacted]

The FBI also developed a list of names of dancers/ballerinas or persons associated with the ballet in Houston, Texas, who are of Russian descent, to confirm if these persons sounded familiar to him.

On February 3, 1989, [REDACTED] was telephonically contacted by the FBI regarding the information he provided to the SASC. He advised that he had no specific or additional information to provide, in addition to that which he had already provided to the SASC. [REDACTED] denied ever calling the Russian emigre ballerina. [REDACTED] was then reminded that he had previously told the SASC that he had called the ballerina. He responded by stating he might have called her or met her someplace. [REDACTED] further commented that, to the best of his knowledge, he has provided all information which he possesses and he did not wish to be further contacted in any way by the FBI. [REDACTED] again denied telling the SASC that he would be willing to be telephonically contacted by anyone in authority. He stated that he was being harassed and any further questions would have to be directed to his attorney.

On February 6, 1989, [REDACTED] Hercules, California. [REDACTED] was interviewed as she resides [REDACTED]. [REDACTED] She stated that when [REDACTED] moved into the area four years ago, he used the name of [REDACTED] and claimed to be a practicing attorney in San Francisco, California. About two years ago, he began the process to purchase his home and began calling himself [REDACTED]. He then claimed to be a medical doctor in Hercules, California. [REDACTED] stated she was dumbfounded that he would change identities without any explanation. She further commented that, [REDACTED] and his wife went on vacation, [REDACTED] a total of four aliases used by him (to include [REDACTED]); however, she could not recall the other names.

[REDACTED] stated that [REDACTED] is not musically inclined and that he does not know how to play the piano. She advised that she used to work in the health care field and she characterized [REDACTED] as a pathological liar, who demonstrates manic depressive tendencies, and who is a "weird, weird, weird" recluse. [REDACTED] also related an incident in which [REDACTED] told her that he was practicing medicine with another doctor in Hercules, California, who happened to be her former employer. [REDACTED] knew that his statement was an outrageous, bold-faced lie, and stated that any information he provides should be "taken with a grain of salt" and that he is a "name dropper type."

Physical observation of a four-block area immediately surrounding the vicinity of the River Oaks Country Club, Houston, Texas, disclosed several mansions which could be described as having an east coast or "Cape Cod" architectural style. The owners of those residences were contacted and found to not be of Russian descent.

A review of COLE's Directory for 1987-1988 for the City of Houston and Harris County, Texas, failed to disclose any Russian or Soviet surnames listed as residents on those streets nearby the club within a four block radius of the River Oaks Country Club. (It should be noted that not all of the residences located in that area are set forth in the directory.) The manager of the River Oaks Country Club advised that he knows of no Russian women who are members of the club.

Contact was made with several ballet and dance organizations to identify the unnamed Russian ballerina described by [redacted]. Six women currently or previously affiliated with ballet or dance schools in the Houston, Texas area, with Russian or Soviet surnames were identified. Attempts to locate and interview one of those women was unsuccessful, as the listed telephone number for that woman is no longer in service.

[redacted] Houston, Texas, advised that she does not know Senator Tower. She stated that she is considered somewhat of a "novelty" among the women of River Oaks because she is of Russian descent, and therefore, she has been a guest at many homes in the River Oaks area. She has never been introduced to a Russian ballerina at any of these gatherings, nor has anyone mentioned a Russian ballerina to her.

[redacted] Houston, Texas, advised that she has known Senator Tower for over twenty years, having been [redacted]. The last time she met with Senator Tower was during his last campaign for the United States Senate, when she attended a dinner for him in Houston, Texas. Her only other association with him has been the exchange of Christmas cards, which ceased approximately three years ago.

[redacted] advised that, until [redacted] she formerly resided in the River Oaks area in Houston, Texas. During the 1970's, she attended many parties in that area which Senator Tower also attended. She never observed him to drink to excess. She is not aware of any former Russian ballet dancers residing in the River Oaks area. She noted that the presence of such an individual would be made known to her in her position as [redacted] and [redacted] because she speaks fluent Russian.

A review of the Houston, Texas, telephone directory, contact with directory assistance, and contact with Doctor's Hospital, Houston, Texas, disclosed no record concerning [redacted]

[redacted] Houston, Texas, was contacted, and also advised that he is not acquainted with Senator Tower, and that he has never attended any small, intimate parties where Senator Tower was present.

5. A lobbying firm rented a hotel room during 1969 until 1970 for Senator Tower which he utilized to meet with prostitutes and to conduct "job interviews" with prospective secretaries, and that Senator Tower was found inebriated in the room.

[redacted] Enterprise, Florida, advised that she was employed as [redacted] with the United States Savings and Loan League (USSL) in Washington, D.C. during [redacted] and [redacted]. She worked for [redacted] who was a lobbyist as was Glenn Troop. Mr. Troop's secretary was [redacted]. She advised that [redacted] provided her with a telephone number that she would call and advise an unknown female to go to the Carroll Arms Hotel at a specific time. According to [redacted] the female who answered the phone was not given Senator Tower's name. She opined that the numbers she called were to prostitutes who were in the Watergate; however, she advised that she can not substantiate these statements.

b7D

[redacted] believed the numbers she called were for the person to meet with Senator Tower because [redacted] would advise her at the time he provided the numbers to her that Senator Tower was going to be in his room. She made from one to four calls per month, but can not recall exactly how many calls she made. [redacted] opined that the USSL had a room on a monthly basis because a bill would be received monthly. She never saw the contents of the bill or anything with Senator Tower's name on it.

[redacted] also stated that [redacted] would interview girls who came to the USSL looking for employment. Subsequently, [redacted] would send them to Senator Tower's office for employment after he evaluated whether they would engage in sexual activities with Senator Tower.

[redacted] That investigation disclosed references to a

character letter that Senator Tower wrote on behalf of [redacted] [redacted] and also contained the same allegations related by the individual whose interview is contained on page five of this summary memorandum under Issue 2, entitled "Sexual harassment by Senator Tower of staff employees."

That investigation disclosed allegations that Senator Tower chased a secretary around an office. That secretary, [redacted] was interviewed by the FBI on December 18, 1988, and she advised at that time that Senator Tower had never approached her in any improper manner. [redacted] is currently a [redacted] for Senator Tower. Further, it was alleged that Senator Tower used Government employees to help him clean his basement which had been damaged by flooding while he was in Geneva, Switzerland. Lastly, that investigation also alleged that Senator Tower had requested Government employees to run unspecified personal errands. No individual previously interviewed by the FBI has mentioned either incident relating to the flood or the running of errands.

On February 7, 1989, the FBI received a letter, dated February 7, 1989, from Representative John D. Dingall, Chairman, Subcommittee on Oversight and Investigations, United States House of Representatives, advising that his committee was in possession of documents that might contain information of interest to the FBI relating to the background investigation of Senator Tower. Additional investigation will be conducted in this regard.

5. Current status of "ILLWIND".

As previously reported, Senator Tower's name surfaced during the course of the FBI's "ILLWIND" investigation into fraud and bribery in the Department of Defense procurement system. While not a subject of the investigation, evidence had been obtained indicating Senator Tower's association with several "ILLWIND" subjects. While the FBI's summary memorandum, dated December 13, 1988, reported the results of "ILLWIND" related inquiries regarding Senator Tower, it also pointed out that some pertinent "ILLWIND" subjects had not consented to talk to the FBI about Senator Tower.

One of those subjects, who previously would not provide information, has now provided a statement. This resulted from the conclusion of plea negotiations with the United States Attorney, Eastern District of Virginia.

John Goodwin Tower

This subject has advised the FBI that a Defense Consultant (who also faces indictment in "ILLWIND") told the subject that he had paid Senator Tower $20,000 for use in Senator Tower's 1984 election campaign. The Defense Consultant further complained to the subject that he was to be reimbursed the $20,000 by a particular Defense Contractor (which also faces indictment) and had not been reimbursed.

Financial records of the Defense Consultant, obtained pursuant to a June, 1988, search warrant, have been reviewed. While the records do not contain any checks payable to Senator Tower, there are cancelled checks totalling $20,000 which were paid to an individual who was formerly employed on Senator Tower's Senate Staff. The payments were made to the former staff member after he left Mr. Tower's staff. The payments were made in three installments from 1984 to 1985.

To date, no evidence has been developed that Senator Tower personally participated in or was aware of these transactions. There is also no evidence that the transactions with the former staff member are illegal.

In an effort to resolve this issue, the FBI will attempt to interview the Defense Consultant-payor of the $20,000, the former staff member-payee of the $20,000, and the representative of the Defense Contractor to determine: (1) the purpose and circumstances surrounding the $20,000; and (2) the degree of knowledge and participation of Senator Tower in the transaction.

Miscellaneous Interviews

[redacted] Dallas, Texas, advised that, in January, 1989, [redacted] surgery on Senator Tower. In connection with this surgery, he had various tests performed on Senator Tower. One test, known as either a SMAC 20 or SMAC 28, gives a very accurate profile of the liver and was conducted on Senator Tower in either December, 1988, or in January, 1989. Senator Tower's liver profile was completely normal. [redacted] stated that during the aforementioned surgery, Senator Tower's liver was observed by him to be completely normal, as was his pancreas and gallbladder. [redacted] also stated that he has never inquired about, nor does he know, any details of Senator Tower's private life.

[redacted] Washington, D.C., advised that a review of Senator Tower's medical record for the period of 1974 through 1985 failed to disclose any indication of liver disease or high and/or low figures with respect to liver function tests, according to blood tests results. Senator Tower did not receive any additional or special tests or exams with regard to his liver, because there was never any indication from routine tests that such exams were needed. [redacted] advised that he never personally examined Senator Tower.

[redacted] Laural Hill, Florida, was recontacted regarding the information she provided on December 23, 1988, concerning an incident which occurred at [redacted] in [redacted] (See page five of the summary memorandum dated January 6, 1989.) [redacted] advised that she recalled an incident, which she had previously failed to mention, that occurred on the first night [redacted]. She stated that she attended a party with other members of the SASC, which took place in a screened porch area, that was adjacent to Senator Tower's quarters. She advised that [redacted]

Upon returning to the party, she met [redacted] currently the [redacted] of the SASC. She explained to him what happened after it was obvious to her that he misinterpreted what occurred. She then returned to her cabin. [redacted] stated that at no other time during that retreat was she alone with Senator Tower and she again denied any sexual contact with him. She also stated that Senator Tower has never sexually harassed her and she has no knowledge of sexual harassment of others by Senator Tower.

An individual*, who requested confidentiality, advised that during the 1970's, Senator Tower would fly from Washington, D.C., to Dallas, Texas, on many weekends. Senator Tower would drink to excess on the flights and, on one occasion, he was assisted off the airplane by two stewardesses. He/she advised that over the last few years, Senator Tower has consumed only wine and he/she has not seen him inebriated. He/she never heard Senator Tower divulge anything involving national security. He/she recommended Senator Tower for a high level government position.

Agency Checks

A check of the records of the Narcotics and Dangerous Drugs Information System, operated by the Drug Enforcement Administration, disclosed no record concerning Senator Tower.

A check of the records of the Foreign Agent's Registration Office, Department of Justice, disclosed that Senator Tower's status, as an British agent of an American subsidiary of a multi-national corporation, was previously determined to be exempt from the registration requirements under that law.

Miscellaneous

On February 7, 1989, Senator Tower was reinterviewed concerning the allegations raised in the summary memorandum. The results of his interview are incorporated into this summary memorandum

Tower backed arms-talks aide found to be security risk

By Mark Thompson
Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON — Defense secretary-designate John G. Tower and other top American officials went to bat for an Air Force colonel in a sensitive diplomatic post whose adultery and mishandling of classified materials made him a security risk, according to federal investigative files.

Even as investigators closed in with evidence that Col. Robert L. Moser Jr. had an affair with a woman with Soviet-bloc connections, that he purchased drugs, improperly copied classified documents and sexually harassed his secretary, Tower wrote a glowing letter of support for the colonel.

Moser, a top-ranking staffer at U.S.-Soviet arms control talks in Geneva in 1985 and 1986, worked closely with Tower, who was a leading U.S. negotiator.

"I do not believe that the allegations against Col. Moser are warranted," Tower said in a March 1986 letter "to whom it may concern." The letter was written two months after Moser was recalled to the United States.

Moser was ultimately dismissed from the U.S. arms control team and retired from the Air Force.

Files of investigations of Moser by several federal agencies — totaling more than 1,000 pages — were obtained from government sources who declined to be identified.

The files depict an atmosphere within the U.S. arms control team of heavy drinking, extramarital sex, poker and cheating on government expense accounts.

Tower, one of the ambassadors leading the team, was host of the poker games and was once seen chasing his secretary, who could not type, according to employees of the diplomatic mission whose statements are included in the files.

The Moser case raises new questions about Tower's conduct and judgment at a time when the former Texas senator's nomination as secretary of defense is before the Senate Armed Services Committee.

The committee unexpectedly postponed a scheduled confirmation vote Thursday, as Chairman Sam Nunn (D., Ga.) said that new allegations about Tower's personal life required additional investigation and consultation with the FBI.

Tower declined, through an associate, to comment about the investigative files. The associate, who asked not to be identified, said that the FBI and the Armed Services Committee had examined the Moser case and cleared Tower of any wrongdoing in connection with it.

The Air Force Office of Special Investigations uncovered "an alarming pattern of disregard for security regulations" by Moser and raised "serious questions of Moser's integrity and conduct," according to the files.

The Air Force investigation "substantiated a number of security violations," including unauthorized reproduction of top secret materials; a failure to safeguard classified material, improperly taking classified material home, and the loss of 20 computer disks containing all of the documents generated by one U.S. arms control team in 1985.

An investigator for the Arms Control and Disarmament Agency concluded that the Pentagon had hushed up the episode because "the extent of Moser's misconduct in an extremely sensitive mission ... involving high-level negotiations with the Soviet Union had the potential for developing into a major scandal and causing serious embarrassment to the Arms Control and Disarmament Agency, the State Department, and the Air Force..."

Although the Air Force did not formally reprimand Moser for security violations — asserting that that was a job for the State Department — it did issue him a formal reprimand for adultery and for sexually harassing his secretary and having her perform personnel business tasks for him at government expense.

Moser's two-year affair in Geneva with an Australian woman with Soviet-bloc relatives "was blatantly improper conduct by an officer living and working in close proximity to a cadre of Soviet agents," his commanding general wrote.

"You deliberately, and unconsciously, placed yourself in a compromising position that could have been exploited by Soviet operatives," the general wrote. "This casual disregard for the sensitivity of your mission evidences deficiencies of character and intellect that are unacceptable in a senior officer."

Moser — who is married, the father of two sons, and resides in suburban Virginia just outside Washington — could not be reached for comment yesterday.

Tower's two-page letter disputed contentions that Moser had violated security rules, contending that "Col. Moser should be applauded for his efforts in this area, not accused of violating nonexistent or unagreed procedures."

Tower concluded that Moser's work was "outstanding and his devotion to his country and his personal patriotism to be above reproach."

Ambassador Max Kampelman, the head of the negotiating team, also wrote a letter in March 1986 praising Moser for his "exceptional energy and dedication" and for his "significant contributions" to the Geneva delegation's work.

"In my view," Kampelman said in his own "to whom it may concern" letter, "Col. Moser is not in any way a security risk."

According to Moser, Tower encouraged him to fight his dismissal from the mission.

"John Tower, when I talked to him, thought that was a mistake — he said: 'We can clear this up — we should have kept you on board where we would have had control — this thing has gotten out of hand. You know, whatever I could do to help, I will,'" Moser quoted Tower as saying, according to government officials' notes included in the file. The notes were taken in 1987, when Moser was seeking a new security clearance in order to do private work for the Department of Energy.

When originally confronted in Geneva with allegations of adultery, Moser was ready with a defense: Others in the 100-member Geneva delegation were doing it.

Moser provided a list of 14 U.S. officials — 13 of whom were married — who had affairs under way in Geneva. Such liaisons "were very common within the delegation and were in many cases, in my opinion, much more open and frequent compared to me," he said in his written response to the allegations.

Moser's list detailed the illicit affairs, with each person described by job title and whether or not his lover was American. At least two of the men involved in separate relationships were "photographed in a very compromising position," Moser said.

By job description, Tower did not appear to be one of the 14.

Moser's former secretary, who filed a sexual harassment complaint against him, told government investigators that he kept files in his State Department safe and told her not to examine them. They "were labeled by names of individuals, rather than by topic," according to an investigation by the U.S. Office of Personnel Management, one of several federal agencies called into the case.

After Moser learned, in early 1986, that his secretary had complained of sexual harassment, "he solicited a large number of written endorsements from several ambassadors involved in the arms negotiations" and other top officials of the U.S. Arms Control and Disarmament Agency (ACDA), the investigative file said.

"One or two of these individuals had initially made statements damaging to Moser, but later on revised their statements to fully support Moser's character, actions, and loyalty," the file said.

The ACDA security officer who interviewed the secretary said he had information "to suggest that Moser had assisted and accommodated several of these individuals in personal and professional matters and their support of Moser may have been influenced by the assistance he had given them in the past, some of which bordered on improper conduct," the file said. Neither the individuals nor the conduct was detailed.

During this period, Tower and Kampelman wrote letters of support for Moser.

Moser denied that he blackmailed Tower or Kampelman when he was questioned by government officials in September 1987, when he was seeking the new security clearance to do work for the Department of Energy. The files do not indicate whether he received the clearance.

"I don't have to blackmail anybody," Moser told a security officer for the Department of Energy, according to a transcript of the interview. "My record speaks for itself."

Simpson: Tower's Industry Links Are Concern, but Confirmation Due

Sen. Alan K. Simpson (R-Wyo.) said yesterday he is concerned that former senator John G. Tower, President Bush's nominee for secretary of defense, will find it difficult to remove himself from Pentagon decisions that affect defense contractors for whom he has worked in recent years.

But Simpson, the assistant Senate Republican leader and a close friend of the president, said on NBC's "Meet the Press" that the Senate is "probably going to approve him, and I think they should."

The Senate Armed Services Committee has held up a vote on Tower, a Texas Republican, pending a probe by the Federal Bureau of Investigation of new allegations about Tower's personal life. That report is due today.

Simpson said Tower's personal life is of less concern than the $750,000 he received from the defense contractors. "That's heavy bucks," Simpson said, noting that it could give the "appearance" of conflict in procurement questions.

Asked how he would advise Tower, Simpson said: "Well, I would try to know that he really would be able to recuse himself from these people that paid him so handsomely in the past. And I think that's difficult to do."
